APPEAL UNDER WAY

The 1973 United Appeal campaign was officially launched today with a target of $680,000 to be reached by Nov. 5.

The campaign has already raised $57,000. or 8.4 per cent of the target, through receipt of corporate and individual gifts.

The residential campaign will be staged between Oct. 15 and Oct. 20.

United Appeal leaders expressed confidence today that this year's target will be reached, in contrast to the last five annual campaigns which did not achieve the goals. In-1972, the goal was $725,000 and $626,000 was collected.

Campaign chairman Murray Glazier and Peter Darling, president of the Community Chest of Greater Victoria, said the general economy is "a great dea better" this year.

They noted that Health Minister Dennis

PAT REMODELS JET

President Nixon's jetliner is undergoing alterations at a price of $285,000, largely to conform to his wife's wishes that guest quarters be next to the president's lounge, it was disclosed today.

A White House spokesman said the changes to the interi-or of the Spirit of '76 were being made while the plane was undergoing a regular, annual maintenance check at John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York.

The remodeling work, and installation of some new units for improvement of the engine performance are to be completed by mid-October.

The plane, also known as air Force 1 and as No. 27,000, was introduced on presidential flights in August, 1972, to replace No. 26,000 which had been used by presidents John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson

The new Spirit of '76 was originally decorated and configured at a cost of $1.5 million. A staff suite was the

Health Recalls Secret

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States Food and Drug-Administration plans to keep secret in future the recall of certain defective and poten-tially deadly medical devices and drugs.

In a series of recent interviews, FDA officials said they are concerned that public warnings may literally frighten people to death

Thomas Brown, director of compliance co-ordination and policy, said the FDA will decide on a case-by-case basis whether or not to issue public

"We want to preclude any undue fright on the part of the public," he said. "It it's going to harm the public by making an announcement, we won't do it."

Recalls might not be made public until weeks or months afterward. Brown said the policy might cover cardiac pacemakers, implanted in the patient's chest to provide an electrical stimulus to the heart, and perhaps some drugs for the chronically ill.

TO ACT QUIETLY

No public warning will be issued if the FDA feels it can contact the limited humber of health professionals and manufacturers necessary to take corrective action quietly, he

The final-decision on delaying public disclosure of a recall will be made by the com-missioner, based on the rec-ommendation of the appropri-ate FDA bureau and the associate commissioner, Brown

The FDA has delayed public disclosure of recalls and did not issue public warnings at least twice recently, Brown said, in the case of heart valves with a tendency to break and pacemakers with loose batteries which could cause them to fail.

"We didn't want to upset all those people (patients) who might drop dead of shock," Brown said.

The western mines produce 18 million tons of coal per year, with eight million tons being sold to thermal plants in Saskatchewan and Mani-toba and the 10 million tons of coking coals being exported through Roberts Bank

The United States, however, has begun a policy of conserv-ing its energy resources and this may dramatically increase the world's coal price and reduce the supply of U.S. export coal.

With a lead time of two to three years, western Canada could fully supply all eastern Canada's needs.

One official said Canada has coal reserves of about 124 billion tons, of which 60 billion tons are in British Columbia.

"At the present time we export 10 million tons. This could be increased to 40 million tons per year and the known reserves would still last for 50 years or more," he said.

Nobel Nomination Urged for Allende

OSLO (AP) - The Norwegian newspaper Arbeider-Avisa of Trondheim has suggested the 1974 Nobel Peace Prize be awarded post-humously to President Sal-vador Allende of Chile

The newspaper cannot nom-inate candidates, but its idea has been supported by a Labor member of parliament,

Members of 'national assemblies are among those who can nominate peace prize candidates.

The legislator said she felt Allende deserved the peace prize because his policy was "aimed at solving the prob-lems of the Third World."

Doth He Protest Too Much?

Prime Minister Trudeau's proposal to charge a tax of 40 cents per barrel on oil shipped out of the country - meaning to the United States - has raised a vociferous protest from Premier Lougheed of Alberta. That is the province which will be most affected by the tax, and oil industry spokesmen have joined their voices with that of Mr. Lougheed. But Alberta's Conservative premier has been accused of "over-reacting," and his threats to mobilize "every weapon and every resource we can" to oppose the tax, even to the point of "un-Canadian" actions, certainly sound that way. He is being extreme to the point where his protests sound more political than economic

Mr. Lougheed refers to the oil as "ours," meaning that his province has jurisdiction over this natural wealth. Under the terms of Confederation, of course, this is correct. But the cold fact is that the oil resources and industry of Canada are owned by United States interests to the extent of 90 per cent. And what Mr. Trudeau's tax amounts to is a charge on oil shipped by American owners in Canada to their own refineries and parent companies in the United

That is the answer to Mr. Lougheed's question: "Why does an exporting nation levy an export tax on its best customer?" It will give Canada a slightly larger nibble at the proceeds of its oil wealth, over and above the provincial levies which Alberta imposes. This country gets little enough direct benefit from its oil resources. The 40-cent tax will give us a smid-

The United States will protest strongly. That is to be expected just as the countries with which the United States deals protest when the U.S. government imposes embargoes, restraints, levies and other devices to better its own position in trade or protect its own

We may expect, also, that Washington may resort to some form of retaliation in an effort to force Canada to abandon the export tax. But we must act in our own interests. And any measure that will assist in preparing the way for western oil to be piped to eastern Canada, that will tend to conserve a dwindling resource for Canadian use, and that will give Canada a slightly better return from the resources in the ground, should get the support of the Canadian people.

The proceeds of the export tax reportedly will be used for federal purposes and at least some will be shared among the provinces. Mr. Lougheed acts as though the money was to come from his personal pocket. As the head of a province whose people have enjoyed a singular freedom from high taxation by reason of their provincial levies on oil, Mr. Lougheed can hardly claim that this new move is a plot of the east to rob the west. He should not let himself be carried away by "un-Canadian" reactions — especially when so many of the Canadian oil industry's head offices are below the 49th parallel.

A Hard Line for Hard Drugs

In passing what amounts to some of the toughest hard drug legislation in North America, New York state is saying that drugs are a criminal problem which have little to do with social conditions, personal weakness or the age in which we live. If the new laws result in fewer heroin, cocaine and morphine addicts, they are likely to be emulated in other parts of the continent.

Sale or possession of hard drugs can now result in life imprisonment in New York State, and those few who manage to receive

Centre Field for Social Credit

At the Legislature opening Thursday Mr. William Bennett rested his chin on his hands and stared thoughtfully at the ninemember Social Credit caucus. As a prime although undeclared candidate for the party's leadership, he has a lot to think about and, he would probably admit, a lot to learn. When he takes his seat in the House September 20 there will inevitably be comparisons as to style and philosophy with his famous father.

But his successful South Okanakan byelection campaign showed he is a very different man from the old-line Social Crediters. It may have been significant that his campaign emphasized the Bennett name rather than Social Credit. He says there are not enough people in this province to elect a right-wing government, and he appears to want to steer Social Credit into the middle-of-the-road where the. corporal's guard of Liberals plods

Considering the disparate elements which his party embraces Mr. Bennett has his work cut out for him. After taking his seat, the next matter of business is the party leadership convention which promises to be an all-out fight, with six declared candidates and a few major possibilities waiting in the wings. If Mr. Bennett successfully seeks the party leadership he may find a few internal fences to mend before encroaching on other parties' territory.

At this juncture Bill Bennett is just the MLA from South Okanagan, but his immediate future and that of his party appear to be on parallel courses.

parole will have to report to local authorities for the rest of their lives. On the other side of the law such harsh penalties produce desperate criminals who might be prepared to kill rather than spend a lifetime behind bars.

In recent months a few studies point to a levelling off of drug use in British Columbia. But in New York City the problem appears to be endemic. Even 30 years ago during the Second World War, parts of Harlem were off limits to U.S. troops because of the availability of drugs and vice. And as late as 1969 passersbys were being offered drugs a few blocks north of 125th Street and Columbus circle, near Columbia University and on the Harlem border.

It is interesting to note that in the sixties high ghetto drug use was said to be caused by the people having little hope and wanting an escape, no matter how transient or unreal. An addict faced with life imprisonment will have even less hope. But if the laws radically reduce hard drug use they will have served their purpose and saved countless people as well. People and laws being what they are, the jails will fill up immediately, but the drugs will remain as long as the ghetto.

Ceiling Zero

Eighteen months ago, the government announced the siting of a new international airport at Pickering, Ontario. This was to be the second of two international airports around Toronto, and the third international airport within a radia us of 300 miles between Toronto and Montreal. Since that time, People or Planes has led a mounting opposition to

Our objections are based on the fact that there is not a proven need for another international airport either now or in the predictable future. The estimated cost - ranging from $600 million (government figure) to $2 billion - represents a colossal expenditure by the federal government. This is being made at a time when there are higher priorities for such a sum of money. These prioriorities include public housing, the correction of regional disparities and the stimulation of decentralization from the Metro Toronto area.

But the federal government has plunged headlong into the airport planning. They have hoped that opposition to the airport will die as arable farmland turns to weed with the departure of farmers who have been expropriated and bought out. The airport and associated complex will occupy some 43,000 acres of class 1 farmland which produces a major portion of food supplies needed to maintain a stable cost of living in this

The government has been forced to announce, because of the opposition to the land grab, a hearing of inquiry. The terms of reference of the hearing are weak, and it is doubtful that real information will be forthcoming unless citizens across Canada take up the cause.

There is no need for a second international airport at Toronto. There is need for correction of regional disparities provision of jobs in areas outside Toronto (there is minimal unemployment at Pickering) and decentralization of major industries from Metro Toronto.

If the government proceeds with this ? airport, rich Metro will get richer - and the poor will get poorer. - C. M. Godfrey, Chairman, People or Planes, Box 159, Claremont, Ont.

Down-Under Pub

After reading an item in the Times of August 3, regarding neighborhood pubs, I would like to add a favorable comment

I lived in Victoria for most of my life but now reside in Christchurch, New Zealand, where this style of local pub is quite popular. The "local" is an important part of the community. It is a place of relaxation and entertainment as well as a liquor outlet.

On a Saturday evening a large crosssection of the community enjoys a drink while listening to a band or some other entertainment. These pubs provide an inexpensive and respectable evening's enjoyment - a place you don't mind taking your wife or girl friend.

In a time when entertainment dists rise by the day, the "pub", especially here in Christchurch, provides a social atmosphere rather than just a place to drink. I have always thought that this type of setting provides a far better attitude to alcohol at a nominal price. -Dave Quissy, 8 Trafford St., Christchurch 5, New Zealand.

brethren to bring home to us "Johnny come latelys" the importance of salmon conservation on the Cowichan River by their dramatic action in building weirs in the traditional methods used by their forbears from time immemorial of these indigenous people.

May we who now share with them this great natural resource realize, before it is too late, our wasteful prodigal use of the great fishing area of Cowichan

I wenty seven years ago I ca England. I used to read in "Field and Stream" of the fabulous fishing in Cowichan Bay fed by the Cowichan and the Koksilah Rivers. What fantastic fishing and runs into the bay! We could actually hear the surge of the silvery hordes of chinooks and coho as they entered the on Club and as president of the Associated Chambers of Commerce, Vancouver Island, I spearheaded moves to prohibit use of herring strip, mooching, wire lines, etc. and advocated use only of artificial lures and reduction of limit of 8 salmon per person in those days. All these aimed at preservation of this unique and world famous sports fishing area. I used to continually berate or protest against the wasteful, profligate methods used to catch these salmon, then in an abundance, both in the bay and on the approaches by then unrestricted commercial fishing.

I would quote examples in England and Scotland where only rich men could afford 1,000 guineas for a stretch of salmon fishing water.

I was told "we have so many salmon, it cannot happen here." Shades of the Passenger Pigeon, long gone never to return! We have seen over the years the slow but sure decline of salmon in the bay. We have seen the runs of the great northern coho on the Koksilah decimated.

Witness the mouth of this river, filthy with logging detritus. Witness the water intake of Crofton Mills on the Cowichan destroying fingerlings. Witness the man-made deterioration of the entire delta of these two famous rivers, the birthplace of once majestic runs of salmon, and now the constantly recurring threat of a nuclear plant in this area. Witness unrestricted logging close to the river banks, log jams, gravel carted away from spawning beds.

O, white man, hang your head in shame for the ecological damage you have perpetrated in the guise of progress. Oh no, it cannot happen here?

Keep up the good work, my Indian brethren, and I trust your efforts will serve to awaken a full awareness of the richness of our natural inheritance and the need for conservation and propagation of these splendid fish before it is too

The Cowichan and the Koksilah can become barren and sterile rivers fit only for sewage and industrial pollution. Another Ecological Disaster? It cannot happen here! - Sam Lane, 429.

A Watershed for Our Times *UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. - An historic "great debate" has begun in the western world over the terms and conditions of a cold-war peace settlement with On one side are men who would wrap up the cold war and accept East-West reconciliation only if the Soviet bloc first extended to its citizens some of the basic human rights widely taken for granted in the West: freedom of thought, of expression, of information, of travel, of emigra-

Arrayed against this group are pragmatists who would encourage East-West · reconciliation for its immediate, practical benefits without "overloading" it with conditions difficult for the Kremlin to accept. Ambassador Charles W. Yost, former United States delegate to the UN, argued the latter case this past week in a brilliant syndicated column.

This controversy is by no means an Ivory-tower exercise. In Geneva this week, 35 nations will begin the second, hard-bargaining stage of a European Security Conference, the most controversial issue of which will be the relationbetween human rights and East-West cooperation. The conference is seeking to build a new and more peaceful Europe,

Human Rights

The vigor with which western negotiators insist on human rights as a concomitant to detente may determine the future of East-West relations for at least a decade - and not merely in Europe.

A tough stand on this issue could scuttle detente and revive the cold war. The Russians could be infuriated at western "interference" in their "internal affairs," and could dynamite the confer-

It seems unlikely that they would; but Yost and other experienced observers consider it a real possibility.

On the other hand, as Senator Henry M. Jackson and many others have pointed out, an attempted reconciliation with the East while eastern governments still oppress their people would be a fragile vessel, vulnerable to the moral outrage

Westerners will rarely invite into their homes, or even confidently do business with, a neighbor who beats his wife or mistreats his children. Respect and trust are lacking.

Moreover, in this case, westerners are being asked to give a formal, public blessing to the authority of the neighbor in his household. A successful European Security Conference would ratify and render quasi-permanent the hegemony of the Soviet Union in Eastern Europe. Such a step would be much more than reality. It would profoundly affect the attitudes and conduct of people within the communist empire. It might crush the remnants of liberal opposition there, as Soviet physicist Andrei Sakharov and Nobel prize-winning author Aleksandi Solzhenitsyn have so clearly indicated.

Less-illiberal communism would, however, involve drastic departures for the Kremlin. It is the road down which Czechoslovakia's Alexander Dubcek started with explosive results. Conservative Russians see their system in peril. Whether the West has enough bargaining power to force a relaxation, and whether - if an all-out effort is made the whole structure of detente will come unstuck no one can know in advance.

Gave Ground

It is simply a fact that in preliminary negotiations leading to an earlier stage of the European Security Conference, the Soviet bloc did reluctantly give much ground on "basket three". (human rights) issues when the West stood firm. Western European nations, notably Britain and West Germany, wish to stand firm at Geneva this coming week. There are reports that Washington, valuing highly the practical advantages of detente, may be prepared to ease up.

It is an interesting footnote to history that Chinese embassies, notably in Europe, are busily arguing for a firm western stand - warning that the Russians are untrustworthy, that NATO unity and strength are essential, that there should be no ill-considered troop reductions in Western Europe.

Peking, however, has its own motivations, only very incidentally related to human rights. The issue for the West is at once practical and moral - and the outcome may be one of the great decisions of our time. Copyright 1973 William R. Prys

But it is fascism which gives freedom to individuals while denying it to the majority of their fellow human beings. Only 4 to 5 per cent of the land in B.C. is suited for agriculture, and most of this bit is taken up by fruit and vegetables. We have dairymen, but they must import food for their stock. Steel is now being assembled very rapidly for the construction of the bridges on the Courtenay extension of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway and gangs of men are now actually at work on the construction of the bridge over French creek which is one of the most important viaducts in the line. The stone piers for the bridges were completed practically to the end of the line some months ago, and only the non-arrival of the necessary steel retarded the putting up of the bridges. However, carloads of steel are now arriving regularly, and it will not be long before work on all the new bridges is well underway.

In the good old days, Hong Kong had its stock exchange on Ice House Road, and it was a club dominated by conservative Englishmen, who black-balled any outsiders who wanted to buy a seat. In 1970, a resentful accountant named Ronald Li organized a competing Far East Exchange, controlled by Chinese entrepreneurs and especially by the Sun Hung Kai hold-ings, which does one-fifth of the brokerage business done in the colony (and a 10 per cent slice of which is owned by the Slater Walker firm, which is also active in Pretty soon, another group of entre-preneurs across the harbor from Hong Kong island set up the Kowloon Exchange.

During the boom of 1971-72, there seemed to be enough easy money to satisfy all the 800 active brokers at the four exchanges. Guards New Top Ten

By D. BLOODWORTH London Observer

SINGAPORE - The new Chinese Polithuro takes into the top ten in Peking not only Chairman Mao Tse-tung but three of the key left-wing militants behind the fury of the Cultural Revolution of the sixties, in which rampaging Red Guards and worker and peasant "rebels" assaulted and smashed the "revisionist" hi-

Its appearance coincides with a fault-finding propagan-da campaign seemingly ic administration of Premier Chou En-lai, and this has prompted some analysts to ask whether an impatient Mao is about to loose the volcanic forces of the Left once, more in order to overthrow the moderates headed by the prime minister and impose his own unequivocal revolu-tionary "line" on China be-fore he dies.

Hard realities dictate other-wise, however. Mao cannot topple Chou with impunity, and Chou does not seek to topple Mao. Opposite sides of the same coin, they must bargain wather than battle with each other, and the winner is the man who gets the best of the deal, a compromise to hold China together, not rip it apart. It is therefore worth looking more carefully at the

Moderate Extremist

The three most prominent Maoists after Mao in the new Politburo are K-ang Sheng, Chang Ch'un-chiao, and the youthful Wang Hung-wen, who has soared into third place in the hierarchy. K'ang Sheng is an elderly, possibly ailing fix-ture from the previous Standing Committee. Chang Ch-'un-chiao is a relatively "moderate" extremist who "moderate" extremist who was at one point attacked by ultra-lectists in Shanghal as a protector of right-wing "revisionists" during the Cultural Revolution, but was supported by Wang Hung-wen.

Chou En-lai, who must bear with left-wing militants at the apex of the hierarchy as part of his bargain with Mao, probably finds these three men the most acceptable. On the other hand he was evidently able to reject the candidatures of Chiang Ch'ing, Mao's fiercely persuasive wife, and the vitriolic Yao Wen-yuan, who is said to be Mao's son-in-law, Standing Committee (they are only ordinary members of the Politburo) stands out like a gap in a set of false teeth.

Formally Damned

Again, evidence has been to prove that the fallen idol and heir-designate, Marshal Lin Piao, tried to murder Mao, and at the 10th congress he was formally damned by name as a counter-revolu-tionary who was plotting with the hated Russian revi-sionists. But for two years after Lin allegedly attempted his unthinkable outrage, his intended victim never once intended victim never once denounced him publicly. From giving Lin Plao unstinted support that he has never accorded to Chou En-lei, Mao simply lapsed into silence.

As Chairman of the 10th party congress, however, he was obliged to preside over the formal destruction of both his "pen" and his "gun"—his personal secretary, Ch'en' Po-ta, and his Minister of Defence, Lin Piao. It was the support of Lin Piao, his "close-compade-in-arms" at the apex of the People's Liberation Army (PLA), that eneration Army (PLA), that enabled Mao to launch the Cultural Revolution, and even when Lin Piao himself disappeared, the great pyramid of military power represented by the veteran generals of his old Fourth Field Army might still look covertly towards. Mao — as long as he did not repudiate their former chief. But today Mao has neither a bin Piao nor a Fourth Field Army to back a second Cultural Revolution.

of an attack on the govern-ment's educational policy in the Liaoning Daily prompted short-lived speculation, that Mao might have found an army strongman to support fam against the moderates. "Tiger" Ch'en Hsi-lien is the cold, able commander of Shenyang military region (which covers all Manchuria, including Liaoning province) and a ranking member of the Polithuro. But Chou En-lai visited him in his great fief on the Sino-Soviet border at the beginning of August. The moderates may have enemies.

The publication in mid-July

Mao Tsetung was last known to be "representative of the masses" on the Liaoning is not one of them.

It is probable, moreover, that Chou En-lai accepts the current chorus of left-wing disapproval as an unspoken disapproval as an unsponent part of his bargain with Mao, for since they are obliged to live with each other political-ly, he is ready to grant the ly, he is ready Chairman "face" as long as he himself holds the administration power, to let the Maoists do most of the talking if the moderates are left to do most of

While left-wing leader-writers call for new young blood, and Mao plants selected Maoists in the upper hier-archy of the party, Chou-steadily and inexorably ex-tracts his own quid pro quo by reinstating a seemingly end-less queue of trusted comrades and cadres flung into limbo by Chiang Ching's Red Guards and the "Shang-hai Mafia" during the Cultur-

Telephone Tapped

The most important of these has been Teng Hsiao-p'ing, much-reviled secretarymuch-reviled secretary, general of the party, who was regarded by the Left as almost as big a blackguard as ex-President Liu Shao-ch'i, but who is nonetheless back in the public eye as a Vice-Premier and a member of the new party Central Committee.

Almost on the eve of the Tenth Party Congress, Tan Ch'en-lin and Ulanfu reappeared in Peking in their turn. Tan, a former Vice-Premier and member of the Premier and member of the Politburo, was purged in 1967 after being accused of conspiring against Mao and condemned as a "renegade special agent and counter-revolutionary revisionist." Ulanfu, then deputy Premier and Chairman of the Inner Mongolian Autonomous Region lian Autonomous Region,
"frenziedly opposed Chairman
Mao, and blatantly slandered his Thought ..., for 20 years he used Hierature and the arts as tools to restore capitalism," according to official:
Communist radio broadcaste Communist radio broadcasts late in the same year.

Chiang Hua, a former provincial party secretary and a disgraced "capitalist-roader" whom Chiang Ching is alleged to have charged with bugging Mao's house and tapping his telephone in Hang-chow, has been restored to chow, has been restored to favor, and two "anti-Maoist" generals who fell from grace in the dangerous days of the Cultural Revolution have now of the Sinkiang and Chengtu Military Regions respectively.

The main source of Chou's olitical strength, the strength that enables him to pack the ranks of his supporters with the army. Military commandtaste of the insolent antics of vociferous Red Guards and of "revolutionary rebels" incited to "seize power" from them by the Maoists make common cause with Chou and his prag-matic ministers. Mao may have re-established the party at the Tenth Congress, but in the provinces it will not effec-tively "command the gun" as he would wish.

Recent events have given no indication of a rapproche-ment between the Maoists and army chiefs like the powerful commanders of Shenyang, Nanking, Fukien, and Chengtu military regions. In most of China's 29 provinces, the army dominates the party, and only in one case has an army officer not associated with Lin Piao ceded his post of first party secretary to a civilian. In Peking itself Mao and the top military leader-ship (with Chou En-lai on the side of the big battalions). have still not agreed on a new Minister of Defence and Chief of Staff for the headless PLA.

Tit-for-Tat

The army may pay lip-service to the dictum that "the party commands the gun" and "accept the centralized leadership of the party" as the new constitution rather pointedly demands. Officers may cede provincial party posts to civilians in future — provided they are the veteran cadres of Chou En-lai and not cadres of Chou En-ial and not jumped-up revolutionaries picked by the "Shanghai Mafia." But that would suit the Prime Minister admira-bly. Moreover, as, a flexible negotiator who owes his survival to his political sup-pleness, he is certainly ready to yield ground temporarily to the aging chairman — at least on a fit-for-tat basis — for if the current Maoist campaign is "the flare-up befor the fire dies," there is no doubt where the power will lie once that fire is out.

Work Plan Urged

OTTAWA (CP) - A federal permanent "work opportunity program" and new income ditional $2.7 billion to $2.9 bil-lion annually has been proposed by a study group of the Canadian Council on Social Development.

The draft report, released Sunday, suggests a perma-nent program to allow unemployed persons to "contribute to society" through some form of work.

It also recommends new income plans for the long-term unemployed and for the work

The council is a citizen's organization including a number of social welfare groups and individuals. It is not a government body, though it receives grants from federal, provincial and municipal govern-ments as well as from individuals and corporations.

The report reviews and criticizes existing social security plans in Canada and proposes a new approach based on the work opportunity and the in-

The study group supports the idea of federal self-help projects but recommends that the programs be permanent.

People working in the pro-grams should be paid the minimum wage in the region and should qualify for the basic income plan (B.I.P) one of the income proposals outlined by the study group.

B.I.P. payments, which would be available to anyone earning a regular but small outside income, would be set as a minimum at two-thirds of the income poverty line es-tablished by the group.

There would be a higher inplan (H.I.P.) for the permanently unemployed. Benefits would be equal to the study group's income poverty

The study group says the poverty line, based on estimates of average family in-come in 1973, would be set at $2,580 for one person rising to $11,180 for a family of 10.

The study group's report urges that programs such as unemployment insurance continue to operate along with these income plans. Family and youth allowances and pensions would also be continued under the study group

KING GUSTAF MOURNED

STOCKHOLM (AP) - Cheered by thousands of his su iects and honored with a 42-shot naval salute, King Carl XVI Gustaf assumed Sweden's throne Sunday.

He flew in from the royal summer residence at Helsing-borg in southern Sweden, where his grandfather King Gustaf VI Adolf died Saturday night.

The 90-year-old Gustaf Adolf's death elevated his grandson. 27-year-old Carl Gustaf, to the throne. Carl Gustaf's father was killed in a 1947 plane crash.

About 10,000 Swedes gathered outside the royal palace Sunday afternoon, chanting: "We want to see our king, we want to see our king," They applauded when he appeared in a

The new king and the royal family, all dressed in black, attended services at Stockholm Cathedral. As they did, preparations were under way for the funeral of the dead monarch. His body is to be brought to Stockholm in a 12-hour motorcade Tuesday.

Funeral ceremonies, dignified by the presence of most European revalties and heads of state, have been scheduled for Sept. 25. Court mourning was ordered for six weeks. Burial will be at the Haga Castle royal burial site near the grave of Queen Louise, the late king's British-born second

Gustaf Adolf earned the respect and admiration of his countrymen during his 23 years on the throne. Hundreds of thousands cheered him as he rode bare-headed in a chill wind through the streets of Stockholm on his 90th birthday last

A sportsman as was his father before him, he played tennis and golf until an advanced age. His grand passion was archeology and he joined a Swedish expedition in Italy annually to search for Etruscan artifacts.

Sweden's new king is a dashing, fun-loving bachelor who has a reputation for showing more interest in beautiful women and outdoor sport than in more serious pursuits.

Ironically, Carl Gustaf was born and brought up in a country governed well before his birth on April 30, 1946, by a Socialist party pledged to abolish the monarchy.

FIREFIGHTERS MAKE PROGRESS

SALMON ARM (CP) — A fire guard of ground cleared by bulldozers around the fire that destroyed many farms near here last week was completed Sunday bringing the 12,000-acre fire under control.

A B.C. Forest Service spokeshan in Kamloops said Sunday 272 men equipped with 26 bulldozers and 12 skidders were still fighting the blaze. Most of the fighting was in the mountains west of Salmon Arm with no smoke showing in the valley near the town,he said.

In the Kamloops forest district which includes the Salmon Arm area 460 men fought 34 fires Sunday, the spokesman said.

man said.

In the Nelson district 223 men were fighting 67 fires, a spokesman there said.

These included a 200-acre fire near Bush River northwest of Golden. This was caused by an escape from debris being burned in a land clearing operation for the Mica dam.

A slash fire 25 miles north of Revelstoke was contained at 300 acres and had been quiet all weekend, the spokesman said.

Some Fires Good For Eco-System

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two B.C. wildlife biologists think it's time to change public opinion that all forest fires are bad.

Regional wildlife biologist Ray Demarchi, of Cranbrook, and his brother Dennis of Victoria, claim forest fires create range for many species of wildlife.

"The present policy of the B.C. Forest Service is to classity all fires as bad whenever they occur in the prov-kince," Ray Demarchi said in an interview here.

"No consideration is given to the role of fire in the ecosystem." The face of the earth is constantly being changed by nautral processes and some fires are good just as some winds are good—that is they produce good results for wildlife."

And he said that the concept of Walt Disney's Bambirunning from the flaming forest is "anti-ecology and a dangerous thing."

"In fact Bambi has possibly done more harm than good to other animals," Ray Demarchi said.

His brother, Dennis, explained that regeneration after a fire results in low-level brush, which is excellent tood for many excell animals.

food for many small animals.

"There are only so many nutrients going around and most aniamls can't reach the nutrients suspended in 300-foot trees," he said.

"Fires get rid of the tall nutrients and make them available instead in low growth."

"Perhaps as many species of wildlife depend on fire as are harmed by fire," said Ray, "People should not be carreless with fire, it can cause great damage. But this constant emotional appeal to the public on the grounds that all fires harm wildlife is unjustified. It's a lie."

"The forest industry and the B.C. Forest Service perpetuate this lie and make it acceptable to the public to put out any fire."

Dennis deplored the publicity given the United States symbol of forest fire prevention, Smokey the Bear.

"Smokey is an institution, for sure, but he's a ludicrous wildlife symbol because the black bear is one of the animals that benefit most from fires. They love to eat huckleberries and tender green shoots which appear a couple

But both biologists agreed that all fires cannot be allowed to burn at random in areas where there is human use of land and suggested that the province be divided into fire control zones.

Trestle Bridge Burns

RICHMOND (CP) A 800-foot section of a 1400-foot Canadian National Railways trestle in the eastern part of this island suburb of Van-couver was destroyed by fire Sunday.

The wood trestle traversed a low-lying area of marshland and peat moss and was the CN's only link with industrial plants in Richmond, situated on Lulu Island in the Fraser River. No passenger trains River. No passenger trains used the line.

A spokesman for CN could A spokesman for Cr could not give a damage estimate. He said cause of the fire was unknown," but once it started, the heavily-crossoted structure just flared up like a match."

What a Man May Learn From Studying a Hen

One of the sad things about our move next month into a bigger house is that it means giving up the six rust-colored laying hens and Tiger, the big, white rooster, not to mention the steady supply of fine brown eggs that we've enjoyed now for these past two years.

Nobody is more surprised than I that when the moment of parting comes, though they are to be left in the capable hands of the new owner. I anticipate an emotional wrench of major proportions, the sort of thing that happens when something good in your life is lost to you.

Chickens are an extremely dumb fowl, often hysterical, so single-minded that they may seem downright demented, subject to all manner of ailments (Curled-Toe Paralysis for) just an exotic example of what you have to watch out for) and yet these birds have had a profound and continuing influence on what I choose to call my life.

We acquired the six chickens two years ago from Derek Pethick, who has a hill-top place out on the Pat Bay Highway, and it has taken me all this time to grasp why an historian and humanist philosopher would be in that business. I now know that you can learn an awful lot from watching which I do frequently and at great length, and it chickens, which I do frequently and at great length, and it wouldn't surprise me at all K Derek studies them with the same intensity to make his judgments on the human condi-

I suppose it is a kind of voyeurism, perhaps even chauis that he is a noble, if not altogether logical, bird who carries out his duties with despatch and without discrimination.

Tiger was given to us by a neighbor because his brother (Tiger's brother, that is) grew into a huge, mean rooster who regularly attacked his wife (our neighbor's wife, that is), and we were warned that Tiger, too, might become a menace. Instead, while he is a very large rooster, he is gentle in manner and apart from posing over-dramatically, as roosters have a habit of doing, I can find no fault with him.

Indeed, all the members of this small flock have behaved so faithfully that I've come to rely on them as the steadying influence in my life. There are days, for example, when I get home from the office convinced that I've become involved in some dark plot, disoriented downcast, in a mood to lop off the tops of dasies with my gold-headed cane. But five minutes of leaning over the fence, watching these splendid birds, restores me to my old sunny self.

The reason is, I think, that they have a life style that is both simple and full of purpose which is, of course, the way we all ought to live. The purpose is to produce an egg and the egg is nature's greatest masterpiece. I feel exactly the same sense of wonder and astonishment today, finding an egg in the straw like a rare jewel in Birk's window, that I felt from the very beginning. As an example of packaging it is both practical and exquisite and the contents are, God knows, worth their weight in gold ... or haven't you eaten a new-

People who come to see us and who have never owned chickens (people who buy year-old eggs at their super-markets and haven't the slightest idea of what an egg should he) often watch our hens with amusement and, indeed, they are a comical bunch with their funny little scratching dance scratch, scratch, two steps back, eyes down, scratch, scratch, two steps back — and they wonder what I see in

What I see, of course, are eggs, great, brown, warm eggs, well over three thousand of them in these past two years, and so, to me, all this has a sort of fixed purpose that's according to divine plan. I would not want to be a that's according to divine plant. I would not write to that chicken, I suppose, but any mere mortal might aspire to that sense of accomplishment, that end result of producing something that's both beautiful and worthwhile.

Chickens communicate this only briefly in the moments after an egg has been produced. This is the finest hour in chicken-watching. The hen who is on the nest, out of sight, suddenly emits the most incredible burst of cackling. You might think, in view of the size of these eggs, that it is simply a cry of pain, but, no, it is unmistakeably a cry of triumph. All of the other chickens, who have been doing their little dance, stop and join in Congratulations are flying everywhere. Then Tiger does a strange little stiff-legged dance, himself, throws back his head and crows, a magnificent sound that may be heard for miles.

"It's an egg! It's an egg" That is what they are telling the world. And there are no words to tell you how I'll miss it.

The revival of canoeing as a popular sport was evident this weekend as a large crowd cheered competitors in the fifth annual Gorge canoe races.

Excitement rose to a peak as the onshore gallery tried to keep pace with canoeists taking part in the gruelling 10-miler for senior men.

With a quarter-mile portage to help flex their muscles, the canoeists headed up the Gorge to Portage Inlet, the route taking them from Thetis

Everything's Rosy in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Economic growth in British Columbia in the last five years has exceeded the national average in all categories, the B.C. Telephone Company reports in an outline compiled for a bond issue.

The outline is contained in the prospectus for a $40 million, 9 per cent, 24-year bond issue by B.C. Tel. Net proceeds of $39.4 million will be used to retire short term.

debt. The bonds are dated Oct. 1, 1973 and will mature Oct. 1,

The outline reports the following growth:
Population of B.C., from April 1968 to April, 1973, gained 15.4 per cent to 2,304,000 while nationally the population gained 6.8 per cent.

In the five years ended Dec. 31, 1872, the gross provincial product increased at an average annual rate of 10.6 per cent. compared with 9.4 per cent for the gross national product. The gross provincial product in 1972 reached $11.9 billion or $5,283 per capita.

Average personal income rose 47.3 per cent in the five

One of the principal factors sustaining the economic expansion of the province has been its high rate of gross capital investment, says the prospectus. In the five-year period ended Dec. 31, 1972, gross capital investment averaged 33 per cent of the gross provincial product.

Growth of the primary industries of forestry and mining contributed substantially to the commercial and industrial development. From 1967 to 1972 the timber cut increased 24 percent, pulp production capacity 27 per cent.

Gross value of mineral production in 1972 was estimated at $631 million, which was 65 per cent more than in 1967.

In 1972 'nvestment in new manufacturing plant and repair was $590 million of which $371 million represented new capital investment.

Bank clearings rose to $79 billion in 1972 from $41 billion

Gen. Water Cools Battle In Cambodia

With the advent of the mon-soon season in Cambodia havson season in Cambodia hav-ing blunted the rebel offensive, relieved Cambodians say, Gen. Water can hold Phnom Penh until December.

The annual monsoon flooding of the Mekong River, the country's main water artery, has restricted the insurgents' ability to resupply and maintain their offensive, permitting the war to slip back into

To anyone flying over the river-laced countryside of central Cambodia in this season, all the world seems flooded. In many places, trees, houses and outcroppings of land are but imperfections in a vast mirror of water reflecting the sky. One can easily understand what the Cambodians mean about Gen.

Every summer, the Mekong, which rises in Tibet, flows out of the hills of Laos swollen with rain from the southwest monsoon to inun-date hundreds of square miles of the Cambodian plain where the Mekong flows into the Bassac and the Tonle Sap be-fore moving on through Vietnam to the South China Sea.

In December, the waters will begin to recede and by the spring the land will be hard and dry again. Until then Gen. Water will remain in the government's employ.

The monsoon impedes military activity on both sides, but it is particularly hard on the insurgents. They must bring in their supplies over washed-out trails all the way from Vietnam. The rising river water floods their ammunition dumps and their carefully constructed bunkers, impairs their mobility and blocks many avenues of attack.

The government, being on the defensive, has a combat advantage. For supplies the government has hard surface roads, and the river as well as airplanes to drop ammunition and rice into isolated provincial capitals.

Last spring ocean-going ships coming up the Mekong to resupply Phnom Penh had to pass up a comparatively narrow stream between banks from which the insurgents could fire down upon them.

Now, with the water level up, the river is very broad and the accompanying patrol boats can direct level fire at insurgents along the banks instead of having to fire up to them. This, and the fact that the government controls more of the river banks than it did last spring, has meant that the convoys are now arriving without interruption and sometimes without incident.

The high water also made it easier for the small Cam-

Kompong Cham when it looked as if the town might fall earlier this month. With out the intervention of the navy, most military experts agree, Kompong Cham would almost certainly have fallen.

It is apparent now that the gent offensive crested before the Mekong reached its the Mekong reached its present level. The insurgents began to pull back from their positions near Phnom Penh during the second week of August, probably because of losses but more importantly because of supply problems.

To mount an attack, the in-surgents must bring up a large amount of ammunition, and the usual pattern is for the insurgents to fight as long as they can before men and supplies begin to run thin. When they can no longer maintain momentum they pull back, regroup and prepare for the next push.

The present offensive

Cambodia began at the end of January, almost on the day that the agreement to end the war in Vietnam was signed in Paris. From the first, the offensive surprised observers with its ferocity, and the in-surgents quickly rolled up most of Cambodia east of the Mekong and bondering on Vietnam. It soon become Vietnam. It soon became clear that although the North Vietnamese might be support-ing the insurgents, most of ing the insurgents, most of the acutal fighting was being done by ethnic-Cambodian rebels. At first, many western observers predicted that the offensive would have to run out of gas by May, then June.

They were wrong.

When the first objective of capturing eastern Cambodia was accomplished, save all but a couple of cut-off towns, the insurgents' resources were not unlimited, and it proved Phonm Penh by cutting all roads and the river route leading into the city.

There were a few weeks in he spring when it looked as if this tactic might succeed. But theinsurgents' resources were not ulimited, and it proved impossible for them to keep all important roads and the blocked at the same many is weighing a bold pro-posal to help the thousands of students annually denied-entry to Germany's over-crowded universities by send-ing them to college in the U.S.

The plan, which has been dubbed hig lift, is the brainchild of a provincial politician named Christian Schwarz-Shilling. He believes that it's possible for as many as 30,000 young Germans a year to study at American campuses.

With an assist from Georgetown University in Washington, he may soon have the chance to see whether he's right. Under the direction of the university's executive vice president for educational affairs, the Rev. Edmund G. Ryan, Georgetown is preparing an experimental pilot program to test the idea.

In early November, Georgetown proposals will be presented to the conference of education ministers from the nine West German states (all German universities are con-trolled by the states in which trolled by the states in which they are located). If the ministers agree, Georgetown is prepared to bring approximately 500 German students to the U.S. next summer and spread them among colleges from coast to posst to p from coast to coast for a year's trial run.

If the idea proves workable, it could have enormous impact not only for West Germany but also for many other countries where governments are hard-pressed to provide higher education for all.

According to the Tel Aviv newspaper Maariv, which last week hinted at the new plan, Dayan thinks Israel should announce that it does not claim sovereignty over any part of the Sinai, but demands the right to control parts of the vast desert area for a given period, perhaps 20 years, until Israel is satisfied that sits security is no longer that its security is no longer threatened. Such an arrangement, Maariv quotes Dayan as saying, can be concluded even before an overall settle-ment is reached.

Although Dayan has a reputation for hawkish views, he has on occasion come up with new ideas that were considered revolutionary even his more dovish colleagues.

While there is no definite in-formation on why Dayan has decided to press for a peace initiative now, observers said the defence minister believes that an accumulation of sevthat an accumulation of several factors including frustra-tion within Egypt, apprehension in the U.S. over the oil crisis as well as numerous anti-fisaeli resolutions which have recently been adopted by various international bodies, should elicit an Israeli reaction in the form of a new peace initiative.

Hot Expos Not Giving In to Pressure

MONTREAL (CP) "We're loose and we're easy and I don't think the pressure is ever going to get to us."

So spoke Ken Singleton, minutes after Montreal Expos downed Philadelphia. Phillies 4-2 Sunday afternoon in National League baseball action.

The win, Montreal's fifth in a row, moved the five-year-old club to within one half game of the East Division leading Pittsburgh Pirates. It was Expos' 13th win in the last 17 games and the third sweep for the red hot Expos in their last four series.

Pittsburgh, New York Mets, t. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs are making threaten-ing noises but Montreal keeps taking the measure of the more established franchises.

"I don't particularly care if nobody else thinks we can do it," said manager Gene Mauch. "I know it and these players know it and that's all that counts. As long as we believe it, who cares what the rest of the world thinks? Everyone on this club, without an exception, is bust-ing his butt out there, day in and day out, and that's the way it's going to be for the rest of the year. That's the way these guys play.

"I can't take any credit for it, the 35 guys in the club-house are doing it, not me."

Lonborg hurt his own cause with a throwing error on Ren-ko's sacrifice bunt in the eighth after Tim Foli's leadoff walk. Lintz forced Foli at third but Ron Fairly singled to load the bases, setting the stage for Doyle's misplay.

Singleton on his single was credited with an REI on the first of the two runs scored, tying the Expó mark of 97 set by Rusty Staub in 1970.

About 400 doctors attended a weekend meeting with the executive of the Manitoba Medical Association, and were told the provincial gov-ernment will not enter into meaningful negotiations leading to a signed contract with lts medical care agency — Manitoba Health Services Commission.

A questionnaire listing possible action the doctors might take is being mailed to the 1.100 members of the association. Besides the study session closing all doctors' offices,

To Flunky Opening This

WASHINGTON (AP) - They're keeping those cards and letters coming in. And they're filled with personal advice, impassioned pleas, name-calling, suggested witnesses, poetry, an occasional obscenity and newspaper clippings.

The seven senators on the select committee on presidential campaign activities — the Watergate committee — are being swamped with mail.

-From a woman in Rockford, Ill., to Senator Daniel Inouye (Dem.-Hawaii):

"I really don't think the tapes will prove anything. He's certainly elever enough to say, 'Dean, let's talk in the men's -From Vail, Col., to Senator Herman Talmadge (Dem.-Ga.): "Play It Again Sam' is a worn out, poorly acted television spectacular. Retire the cast and discontinue the show immediately."

-To Senator Lowell Weicker (Rep.-Conn.) from Berk-

"Impossible, inadequate, inept, incompetent, insidious inconvincible, inane, inadmissible, insensitive, iniquitous, inhuman, incredible, indecent, inasmuch, impeach."

-From a California man: "I'm amazed you haven't looked into the possibility that he (President Nixon) doesn't have a marriage licence."

According to estimates, well over 200,000 letters have been received on Watergate. The select committee, which opens only mail addressed to it or to chairman Sam Ervin (Dem.—N.C.), quit counting July 30 when the count stood at 87,137 letters.

"Now we count mail bags," said Carolyn Andrade, administrative assistant to the committee.

The mail to the individual senators is also staggering. Senator Howard Baker (Rep.—Tenn.) and the vice-chairman, has received more than 40,000 letters at his office.

The committee says the mail is favorable by a 9-1 mar-

It comes in all forms - from a block-brinted letter from a little girl in Skokie, Ill., "Keep Watergate Going," to organized position papers, complete with title. Some are mim-eographed and mailed to all senators, some, as long as eight and nine pages, are painstakingly handwritten.

A postscript by one writer said she had missed only three hours of testimony since the hearings began. A woman from Chevy Chase, Md., whose television set is in the kitchen, has polished all the silver, organized a 30-year collection of recipes and rearranged all of her kitchen cabinets since the hearings began. She wrote to thank the committee.

The staffs of the senators say they have never seen mail on any issue where the public was so fully informed. The writers point out discrepancies in testimony, suggest questions which should have been asked and point out what questions they didn't like.

Poetry arrives regularly. Talmadge's staff personally responded to one poet, praising his style. The poet responded by sending in his entire collection. Unpublished, of course.

Weicker received a tie from someone who thought he was wearing the same one every day and ought to change.

About $1,000 in contributions arrived in the Select Committee's mail. Some was earmarked to defray expenses to allow the committee to "keep up the good work" and some was labelled campaign contributions. All was returned.

The committee's strongest support comes in letters urging the continuation of the television hearings, with accolades that this is the first time in U.S. history the public really received the right to know. Its strongest opponents accuse the members of "show business."

The staffs say there is little evidence of any large-scale letter-writing campaigns. About 30 form letters arrived from Enterprise, Ala., and 50 strikingly similar ones from a small town in Indiana. Blue postcards from San Juan Capistrano, Calif., are beginning to find their way to the committee. The printed message is against the committee.

A heavy volume comes in from three states: California, Florida and Texas, The bulk of the writers are women, but college presidents, presidents of companies, priests, lawyers, state senators and even the mother of Lee Harvey Oswald

The staffs answer all the letters, although some are backed up two weeks. Mostly, the replies are form letters, but a few are answered personally.

The senators see a sampling of the letters and receive briefings on which way they are running. One woman, awage how busy the senators are, wrote a note to Mrs. Ervin in-

The staffs are suffocating under the weight of the work. Everybody has turned into letter openers, volunteers are being pulled in and some staffs are thinking of hiring temporary help to lighten the load.

Leah Colihan, a press aide to Weicker, had just about had it one day after opening letters for three straight hours. Then she hit the one that sent her through the ceiling.

There and then the Corbett green thumb began to twitch again. Turn the bit of land over to him, he suggested, and he would cultivate it.

That's exactly what hap-pened. This ardent gardener, by then fully retired, took that piece of uncultivated earth and added more beauty to the secluded spot hidden from view to passers-by from every angle. (Two new buildings on Beach Drive recently com-pleted the "fencing in.")

The day I saw the garden, Dr. Corbett told me that in no place is there earth more than a foot deep. Yet, there is lush growth.

He pointed to a few "freaks" as he called them, that he treasures "because they are different."

A carnation that grows two shades of flowers, a rhubarb plant with leave nearly two feet wide and a plant that is a cross between a pepper and a tomato. "Tastes like a pep-per, looks like a tomato."

He showed me his latest plantings — Brompton stock seedlings, "They bloom in March and they bloom in March and they are very, very fragrant."

Then he looked around with an obvious air of satisfaction and said quietly, "I golf two days a week now, the others I'm usually down here ... I'm enjoying this garden!"

Finally he looked up at all those windows and balconies at the backs of the apartment buildings that surrounded him and he added — "and I know they enjoy it too!"

Green Cabbage Surprise Lifts English Reputation

Small, fresh heads of cabbage from the garden are ideal for introducing "cole slaw" to the family. The pointed heads of the Jersey Wakefield variety have a sweetness which blends well with apples and with cheese.

Allow a half-cup of finely hand-shredded cabbage to a serving. Dice a half apple for serving. Dice a nair apple for each, immediately adding a spoonful of yogurt to prevent discoloration and loss of nutrients. Add a quarter cup of shredded Cheddar cheese for each serving. Mix all lightly opening the property of the control of the sprinkle with finely chopped chives; served with cottage cheese and wholewheat buns or bread you have a light yet been cooked in the same pan. Even older heads of cabbage cook quickly if shredded finely. There is a minimum of vitamin and mineral loss if gooked in a covered pan with a little butter or margarine. Grate a little nutmeg over.

A pleasant variation is to add a sliced apple and a half teaspoon of honey or brown sugar to the cabbage before cooking with the butter. Stir often to prevent scorching; keep at a gentle simmer rather than a fast boil or you will lose all the liquids.

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By Dr. WALTER ALVAREZ Dupuytren's contracture of the palm of the hand, named after the surgeon who described it in 1831, results from an overgrowth of fibrous tissue, called the palmar fascia, on the under side of the outer half of perhaps one hand, or it can occur in both hands. This overgrowth produces a contraction which gradually draws up the outer fingers. Experts say that there is no cause known, except sometimes a hereditary predisposition. The trouble tends to appear a bit-more often in epileptics and in alcoholics with cirrhosis of the liver. Men are affected more frequently than and gives rise to a strong band of defective tissue. As this tissue contract, it tends to pucker the palm. After a while, the fourth and often the third fingers are pulled up

The victim can be cured by suggical removal of the contracting palmar fascia (fascias are strong tissues that lie under the skin in certain parts of the body.

There is a miserable form of arthritis called ankylosing spondylitis, or "a poker spine," which is found most frequently among young men and strikes one or two persons out of every 1,000 in the general population.

In this disease, the vertebrae, or bones that make up the spine, become firmly fas-tened together, causing the person to stand and walk in a peculiar way that can easily be recognized by an expert.

The disease starts with in-flammation of the spine. The victim, most often a young man in his teens or twenties may only have vague back pain that is unrelieved by rest, which lasts for over three months at a time. The disease tends to run in families. Acording to a report at the Arthritis Foundation was described in which there thickening in the tissue just was described in which there under the palm of the hand were eight diagnosed cases of slowly and painlessly spreads poker spine in three genera-

> The patient with a beginning poker spine will do well to go to an expert orthopedist, who will try to help him with anti-inflammatory drugs and specific exercises.

.The doctors have found in the blood of persons with ankylosing spondylitis special substances called histocompatibility antigens, which have to do with the body's immunity to foreign substances, and may lead scientists to more knowledge of the disease. The doctors are at the University of California at Los Angeles.

NUTRITION: Three Answers

NEW YORK (NYT) - It is generally recognized that vast gaps still exist in the scientific understanding of human nutrition. But while a great deal has yet to be learned, enough is already known to answer many of the questions now being asked.

Three of the most commonly asked questions, and the best available answers to them based on dozens of interviews with nutrition ex-

ARE HEALTH FOODS HEALTHEIR?

"Health" food is an un-defined term. What is one man's health food could well be another man's poison.
Probably the only real definition of a health food is something sold in a health food or natural food store. "Organic" foods, on the other hand, are those grown on soil nourished only with manure and without only with manure and without the aid of synthetic fertilizers, pesticides and herbicides. They should also be prepared and packaged without preser vatives, coloring agents and

Hockey on Verge of Draft Agreement

National Hockey League and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association appeared only a step away from agreement today on a new pact that would allow amateurs under 20 but of exceptional ability to drafted to professional

Both NHL president Clarence Campbell and Jack Devine of Belleville, Ont., president of the CAHA, expressed optimism that such an agreement can be reached within a matter of days.

The two hockey groups met here over the weekend with Lou Lafaive, deputy to health minister Marc Lalonde, acting as an observer for the federal government.

Before leaving for home, de-vine said only "one minor technicality remains to be cleared up." Both Campbell and Devine agreed that the technicality covers the mechanics of draft-an agreement with the CAHA that prevents it from signing players under 20 from junior ranks. But the new World Hockey Association put the NHL at a distinct disadvanThe WHA apparently felt free to take this action because it had no working agreement with the CAHA. But the WHA reached tentative agreement at a Toronto meeting earlier this month to pay for junior players signed — as the NHL does.

690,000 Recall By Ford and GM

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. is recalling 89.876 of its 1973 model cars, including 6,189 cars in Canada, to check for two separate safety-related defects.

The firm said about 42;290 Ford and Mercury models built in July and August would be checked for a possible misalignment in the carburetor linkage.

Ford said the defect could cause the throttle to jam in the maximum acceleration position when the gas pedal is fully depressed. No such occurences have been reported, curences have been reported, the firm, said.

Affected by the carburetor linkage recall are Ford and Mercury models with 302-, 351- or 400-cubic-inch engines, automatic transmissions and two-barrel carburetors.

The accumulator is a small metal expansion chamber in the fuel line which reduces noise in the system.

Under certain conditions, Pontiac said, a loosely fastened plug in the accumulator could leak and allow fuel to suppon from the fuel tank siphon from the fuel tank when the engine is not run-

Plenty of Small Chores To Get Greenhouse Ready

tunnakinin manakin man

The gardener's small greenhouse must be ready for winter use long before the weather reaches a distinct change, for there may be more to do than you had thought about.

Cleanliness is essential. If the structure is empty, or almost empty, of plants, move them outside (daytime) if they are in containers, before sweeping and brushing the benches

Don't forget the walls and roofing of the potting shed. A hose down of the glass will be possible if weather still sunny and warm, for the additional water rapidly evaporates with open vents and door.

Wipe the glass to remove grime after hosing. The plants need every ray of light available in winter. Scrubbing the woodwork with soap and water discourages fungous growth and dislodges insects in crevices.

Don't forget the undersides of benches, and the area around the soil mixing bench.

The heating system needs testing. Whatever method is used, test it at the end of day when temperatures are dropping. Have the maximum-minimum thermometer set to check how high and low temperatures go during and after the test. And don't forget to turn off the heat when your test is satisfactory. You are not likely to be needing it yet,

If you have no water tap inside, it will pay to put in plas-tic lead and a tap. A second-hand flat sink and drainpipe to outside is a great advantage in winter for washing pots and tools; also when frequently sponging off the inside glass for

Load the soil bin now with completely rotted compost. Don't screen it until needed, for you want varying degrees of texture. A five-gallon pall of sharp sand is needed. You screen different grades for setting cuttings, for making potting mixes, and for topping flats of certain seeds as a precaution against damping off in late winter indoor sowings.

If glass reaches to soil level, you have a ground bed for growing winter vegetables. Above it at a height you can reach, but not to completely cut off overhead light to the ground bed, have a narrow shelf for seed boxes. Germination and growth will be good there.

You will know the sun passes on a low arc from southeast to southwest in winter, so be sure the glass in south end of greenhouse is free from obstructions to sunlight. You need

Prepare the ground bed by forking: If used for several recent years, take out some soil, replacing with as much or more of good garden soil and composted material. If these are dry, gradually get them thoroughly dampened over a period of days while vents and door are wide open.

If you need more to do in preparing the greenhouse for wind efficiency later.

South's third position open-ing bid of feur spades was a fine call. With his partner hav-ing passed originally, a biddable slam was out of the ques-tion. Had South been in first or second position, he would have opened with one spade, since the theoretical possibili-ty of a slam would then exist.

After cashing the king and queen of diamonds, West laid down the ace of trumps and then continued with his remaining trump. It was his hope that his partner had a winning trick somewhere; or that comeshow West might that, somehow, West might later be able to make his dia-

It would be unfair to criti-cize West for his failure to have led a low trump at trick two, especially when one contwo, especially when one considers the bidding. Actually, West could not have been criticized if he had led either a heart of a club, hoping that his partner possessed the ace of the suit led. 8:03 (AM) Mosaic — Ger-music performed Richard Seaborn, his orches-tra and the Mennonite Folksingers. Songs include The Happy Wanderer, two Men-nonite hymns, True Love and Gute Nacht. The orchestra performs three German Gute Nacht. The orchestra, performs three German dances, a Bavarian "slapping" from his own children's book dance, a couples dance, and a lit is a fantasy describing the schottische. The second of two programs recorded at a pub-lic concert in Winnipeg.

8:30 (AM) Identities
Czech Frontier Men: George Falada, a Czech who came to Canada five years ago, sings and tells the story of the "tramps," not what Canadians know as tramps, but people who live and work in the woods. Program also visits the oldest Polish community in Canada, the village of Wilno, Ontario. Ray Conlogue talks to some of the residents Schneider.

Although we've been selling new Datsuns at a terrific pace, we've been selling the trade-ins even faster! The result

we have very few used cars in stock (of course, the few

we have are typical of the best value used cars you'd ex-pect to find at Three Point). Because we need used cars we will pay top trade-in prices on new Dat-suns. You've heard that line before? Sure! But just take a look at our lot—we need your trade!

Come into Dat-sunland and see just how much your

The provincial government today announced the appoint-ment of Denis K. P. O'Gorman as the assistant director of the new Environment and Land-Use Secretariat.

O'Gorman was formerly co-ordinator of park planning studies for Parks Canada. He will start his new job Oct. 1.

The Secretariat is an interdepartmental co-ordinating agency designed to administer decisions of environmental and land-use commit-tee of the provincial cabinet which deals with land man agements and provincial environmental issues.

APPEAL UNDER WAY

The 1973 United Appeal campaign was officially launched today with a target of $680,000 to be reached by Nov. 5.

The campaign has already raised $57,000, or 8.4 per cent of the target, through receipt of corporate and individual gifts.

The residential campaign will be staged between Oct. 15 and Oct. 20.
United Appeal leaders expressed confidence today that this year's target will be reached, in contract to the last five annual campaigns which did not achieve the goals. In 1972, the goal was $725,000 and $626,000 was collected.

Ganges resident Norman Stevens: 20, today was charged in Sidney police court with the murder of Harbor House Hotel owner Walter Herzog Saturday.

The accused, who had a cut over his left eye, was remarded to next Monday.

Herzog, 46, was shot five times in the chest, stomach and shoulder early Saturday in his ground-level suite at the hotel in Ganges. Police are looking for the murder weapon, believed to be a .32-calibre revolver.

Police said Herzog had recently evicted a number of young people from the hotel beer parlor but they did not know if the accused was

After the new wing was opened, the old section of the hotel was destroyed by fire. Herzog began a new construction program to replace the destroyed section. The new wing, containing rooms and banquet facilities, was open in two weeks.

Born in Russia, Herzog came to Canada after the Second World War. He was fluent in both Russian and German and learned English in night school courses. He became a tradesman and then a successful contractor.

He had planned a visit to his Russian homeland this fall after construction was com-plete and he had hired a manager for the hotel.

Humphrey said the study made clear that "mandatory allocation of fuels is not es-sential and must not be delayed longer."

President Nixon's administration has taken the position that rigid controls over dis-tribution of fuel supplies is not warranted and that the present voluntary allocation program should suffice with normal weather conditions, domestic output and slightly increased imports.

The Washington Star-News reported Sunday the interior department had told the White House privately that potentially serious heating oil shortages could develop this winter and that interior officials planned to release the analysis today because they felt the energy problem was not being taken serously enough.

The department's study was reported to have concluded that the U.S. will have to import a minimum of 650,000 port a minimum of 650,000 barrels of oil daily to get through the coming winter in comfort and "it may not be possible to increase imports to needed levels," with the maximum at present being about 550,000 barrels a day.

If the weather should get mildly colder than normal, which happens about four of every 10 winters, shortages-would begin in early Febru-ary and reach about six per cent of demand in March for east coast to the Rocky Moun-would not be spread evenly. A six per cent shortage for the whole area becomes a 42 per cent shortage within New England or a 100 per cent shortage within the upper midwest.

The earlier the cold weather starts, the harsher the shortages become. As has been demonstrated recently in the markets for gasoline and beef, minor shortages of less than five per cent give rise to consumer alarm, hoarding and disruption of normal activities, the report notes.

The report says that if Americans turned down their thermostats three degrees. from 74 to 71 degrees — the action would approximately offset the effects of weather 4.3 per cent colder than nor-mal. Winters that are much colder than normal happen three out of every 10. Because of rising demand for natural gas, many utility and industrial gas users will be cut off this winter. These so-called interruptible customwill attempt to shift to heating oil and residual oil.

However, the union members objected to the agreement which said a go-vernment-appointed media-tor's report, to be made to the

What a Man May Learn From Studying a Hen

One of the sad things about our move next month into a bigger house is that it means giving up the six rust-colored laying hens and Tiger, the big, white rooster, not to mention the steady supply of fine brown eggs that we've enjoyed now for these past, two years.

Nobody is more surprised than I that when the moment of parting comes, though they are to be left in the capable hands of the new owner, I anticipate an emotional wrench of major proportions, the sort of thing that happens when something good in your life is lost to you.

Chickens are an extremely dumb fowl, often hysterical, so single-minded that they may seem downright demented, subject to all manner of ailments (Curled-Tue Paralysis is just an exotic example of what you have to watch out for) and yet these birds have had a profound and continuing influence on what I choose to call my life.

We acquired the six chickens two years ago from Derek Pethick, who has a hill-top place out on the Pat Bay High-way, and it has taken me-all this time to grasp why an histo-rian and humanist philosopher would be in that business: I now know that you can learn an awful lot from watching chickens, which I do frequently and at great length, and it wouldn't surprise me at all if Derek studies them with the same intensity to make his judgments on the human condi-

I suppose it is a kind of voyeurism, perhaps even chau-, that I should be mainly watching Tiger is that he is a noble, if not altogether logical, bird who carries out his duties with despatch and without discrimination.

Tiger was given to us by a neighbor because his brother regularly attacked his wife (our neighbor's wife, that is), and warned that Tiger, too, might become a menace. In stead, while he is a very large rooster, he is gentle in manner habit of doing, I can find no fault with him.

Indeed, all the members of this small flock have behaved so faithfully that I've come to rely on them as the steadying influence in my life. There are days, for example, when I get home from the office convinced that I've become involved in some dark plot, discriented, downcast, in a mood to lop off the tops of daisies with my gold-headed cane. But five, minutes of leaning over the fence, watching these splendid birds, restores me to my old sunny self.

The reason is, I think, that they have a life style that is both simple and full of purpose which is, of course, the way we all ought to live. The purpose is to produce an egg and the egg is nature's greatest masterpiece. I feel exactly the same sense of wonder and astonishment today, finding an egg in the straw like a rare jewel in Birk's window, that I felt from the very beginning. As an example of packaging it is both practical and exquisite and the contents are, God knows, worth their weight in gold . . . or haven't you eaten a new-chickens (people who buy year-old eggs at their super-markets and haven't the slightest idea of what an egg should be) often watch our hens with amusement and, indeed, they are a comical bunch with their funny little scratching dance scratch, scratch, two steps back, eyes down, scratch, scratch, two steps back -- and they wonder what I see in

What I see, of course, are eggs, great, brown, warm eggs, well over three thousand of them in these past two years, and so, to me, all this has a sort of fixed purpose that's according to divine plan. I would not want to be a chicken, I suppose, but any mere mortal might aspire to that sense of accomplishment, that end result of producing something that's both beautiful and worthwhile

Chickens communicate this only briefly in the moments after an egg has been produced. This is the finest hour in n-watching. The hen who is on the nest, out of sight suddenly emits the most incredible burst of cackling. might think, in view of the size of these eggs, that it is simply a cry of pain, but, no, it is unmistakeably a cry of triumph, All of the other chickens, who have been doing their little dance, stop and join in. Congratulations are flying everywhere. Then Tiger does a strange little stiff-legged dance, himself, throws back his head and crows, a magnificent sound that may be heard for miles

"It's an egg!-It's an egg." That is what they are telling the world. And there are no words to tell you how PH-miss it.

SECOND SECTION

The revival of canoeing as a popular sport was evident this weekend as a large crowd cheered competitors in the fifth annual Gorge canoe races.

Excitement rose to a peak as the onshore gallery tried to keep pace with canoeists taking part in the gruelling 10-miler for senior men.

With a quarter-mile portage to help flex their muscles, the canoeists headed up the Gorge to Portage Inlet, the route taking them from Thetis Cove in Esquimalt Harbor, around to Victoria's Inner Harbor and on to a return less than the control of Harbor and on to a return leg back to Craigflower Park.

Fred Pritzer and Roy Jack son of Vancouver were first home of the crews racing in standard canoes, edging out Nils Lovenmark and Owen Benwell of their home town. In third place were Stan Luzzi and Ron Brown of VCC.

Lois Thompson and Sharon Harshaw of VCC proved a winning combination in the Bollegraaf of Burnaby and Lynda Griffith of Seattle were second. The Vancouver crew of Bev Lovenmark and Brenda Rollins was third.

It was a VCC sweep all the way in the Centennial race, in ages must equal at lest a total of 100 years. Jack Akins and Gerry Irvine came first, Walter Neilson and Bob McInnis ended up second and in third place were Peter van Dyke and Dan Johnstone.

Land Plan Deadline Easing Asked

The Capital Regional District appears unlikely to be able to meet a statutory 90-day deadline for preparation of the local agricultural land reserve plan, the district said in a statement today.

. The plan, being formed under the Land Commission Act, was supposed to go be-fore a public hearing Oct. 1 but if the provincial govern-ment grants an extension, this will be held at a later date. The regional board made decisions on a number of prin-decisions on a number of prin-ciples to be incorporated in the plan Aug. 24 but additional items which were deferred are still to be considferred are still to be considered and this is expected to be tone Wednesday.

The planning department would then change its maps before any of them are available for public viewing, the district said.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Economic growth in British Columbia in the last five years has exceeded the national average in all categories, the B.C. Telephone Company reports in an outline compiled for a bond issue.

The outline is contained in the prospectus for a $40 million, 9 per cent, 24-year bond issue by B.C. Tel. Net proceeds of $39.4 million will be used to retire short term debt. The bonds are dated Oct. 1, 1973 and will mature Oct. 1, 1993.

The outline reports the following growth:
Population of B.C., from April 1968 to April, 1973, gained 15.4 per cent to 2,304,000 while nationally the population gained 6.8 per cent.

In the five years ended Dec. 31, 1972, the gross provincial product increased at an average annual rate of 10.6 per cent compared with 9.4 per cent for the gross national product. The gross provincial product in 1972 reached $11.9 billion or $5.283 per capita.

Average personal income rose 47.3 per cent in the five years to an estimated $4,050 per capita in 1972. During the same period retail sales increased from $2.6 billion to $4.1 billion.

One of the principal factors sustaining the economic expansion of the province has been its high rate of gross capital investment, says the prospectus. In the five-year period ended Dec. 31, 1972, gross capital investment averaged 33 per cent of the gross provincial product.

per cent of the gross provincial product.

Growth of the primary industries of forestry and mining contributed substantially to the commercial and industrial development. From 1967 to 1972 the timber cut increased 24 per cent, pulp production capacity 27 per cent.

Gross value of mineral production in 1972 was estimated at $631 million, which was 65 per cent more than in 1967.

In 1972 investment in new manufacturing plant and repair was $590 million of which $371 million represented new capital investment.

Bank clearings rose to $79 billion in 1972 from $41 billion

MAJOR PLANT IN U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—Volvo of Sweden has confirmed it will become the first major foreign car manufacturer to establish an auto assembly plant in the United States.

'The company's plans, first reported last week, call for a factory costing more than $100 million to be built on a 500-acre site at Chesapeake, Va.

Volvo said work is to begin on the facility early next year and production will be under way by fate 1976.

Plans call for production of 100,000 cars a year by the late 1970s, the company said.

Volvo has an assembly plant in Malifax employing about 180 workers and producing 10,000 cars a year. Expension by the end of this month should increase production to 15,000 is said to contain between 20 to 25 million tons of ore grading average of 20 per cent combined lead and zinc.

He said a test shipment of 5,000 tons of ore grading about 40 per cent zinc and lead will be shipped to a smelter in New York for testing purposes. ing purposes.

Douglas also said the property has potential for more ore being found but it is impossible to say how much. The feasibility studies are: expected to be completed in the spring. They consist of studying the transportation aspect of moving the ore, the metallurgy and community development on the island.

Douglas added the company has been holding preliminary.

WASHINGTON - A Congressional staff study forecasts a fuel shortage that could approach 30 per cent of the needs of the U.S. this winter if unusually cold weather is accompanied by refinery breakdowns or import disruptions, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey

He provided no detailed utilities responsible for 25 per data, but said the staff of the Joint Economic Committee of Congress reviewed the situation at his request and concluded that "shortages of more than 10 to 15 per cent would bring life to a halt in the affected regions."

The committee staff found tht a shortage as large as 30 per cent could result in "an economic crisis for the United States unparalleled since the great depression," Humphrey said in a statement, adding that New England, the upper Midwest and mid-Atlantic states were seen as the most threatened areas.

Humphrey said the study made clear that "mandatory allocation of fuels is not essential and must not be de-layed longer."

President Nixon's administration has taken the position that rigid controls over distribution of fuel supplies is not warranted and that the present voluntary allocation program should suffice with normal weather conditions, domestic output and slightly increased imports.

The Washington Star-News reported Sunday the interior department had told the House privately that potentially serious heating oil shortages could develop winter and that interior ficials planned to release the analysis today because they felt the energy problem was being taken serously enough.

The department's study was reported to have concluded that the U.S. will have to import a minimum of 650,000 barrels of oil daily to get through the coming winter in comfort and "it may not be possible to increase imports to needed levels," with the maximum at present being about 550,000 barrels a day.

If the weather should get mildly colder than normal, which happens about four of every 10 winters, shortages would begin in early Febru-ary and reach about six per-cent of demand in March for the region stretching from the east coast to the Rocky Moun-

However, the shortages would not be spread evenly. A six per cent shortage for the whole area becomes a 42 per cent, shortage within New England or a 100 per cent shortage within the upper with

The earlier the cold weather starts, the harsher the shortages become. As has the markets for gasoline and beet, minor shortages of less than five per cent give rise to consumer alarm, hoarding and disruption of normal activities, the report notes.

The report says that if Americans turned down their thermostats three degrees from 74 to 71 degrees — the action would approximately offset the effects of weather 4.3 per cent colder than nor-mal. Winters that are much colder than normal happen three out of every 10.

Because of rising demand for natural gas, many utility and industrial gas users will be cut off this winter. These so-called interruptible custom ers will attempt to shift to heating oil and residual oil. In Washington a group of

IBM LOSES SUIT, MUST PAY $352M

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — International Business Machines Corp. was found guilty today of monopolistic business practices in the computer industry and was ordered to pay the Telex Corp. $352.5 million in damages.

Telex, a Tulsa-based firm, in return was ordered to pay IBM $21.9 million in damages for stealing IBM trade secrets.

IBM was ordered to begin a series of actions to break up the huge firm's hold on the computer assessory market, actions which Telex has sought.

IBM and Telex have been feuding over competition in the electronic data processing industry for years.

Telex first sought $1.2 billion in damages in a suit charging IBM with monopolistic practices.

'Deranged Chileans' A Threat

SANTIAGO (WP) — president of Chile's new tary junta, Gen. Augusto Pin-ochet says he is deeply worried about Chile because of a group of "mentally deranged Chileans" who have not given up their resistance to the new government.

With censorship still in effect in Chile, the extent of such resistance is not known. but in a weekend television broadcast, Gen. Pinochet warned that he would not tolerate any opposition.

"I am not a murderer," said the general, "but if people insist on fighting, we will act as we do in time of war." - Pinochet also said that the violent overthrow Tuesday of President Salvador Allende's necessary to save the country als without ambitions. We are men without a future who can bring a future. Democratic-normality will eventually re-turn to Chile," he said.
